

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for binding a boot to a baseplate of a snowboard, having: a first band mounted on a first side of the base plate; 5 a second band mounted on a second side of the base plate opposite the first side of the base plate in a width direction, the second band being removably attached to the first band, so as to fasten a toe end portion of the boot to the base plate wherein the second band fastens the toe end portion at an acute angle with 10 respect to the base plate and the toe end portion of the boot.